Taiwan, with its advantages of quality higher education, affordable tuition, diverse culture, friendly people, and good living environment, is among the best places to study abroad for people from other countries. Began as Taiwan Provincial College of Public Administration in 1949, National Taipei University has a long tradition of educating and training the country's business and legal elites. With the support from NTPU's College of Business, this fully English-taught master program, MBA in Finance was founded in 2013, aiming to become the incubation center of future financial leaders equipping its students with global views from Asian perspectives. The program, together with the College of Business, earned the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) International Accreditation in 2016.

In 2019, MBA in Finance becomes one of the programs under the newly established International College of Sustainability Innovations (ICSI). Our goal is to offer an even broader spectrum of unique experience and challenges for international students, by creating and offering courses related to sustainability, developing and implementing a collaborative inter-discipline and cross-discipline teaching model, as well as providing a warm and friendly living and learning environment for students.

The MBA in Finance highly welcomes international students who are eager to interact and share their learning experience with Taiwanese local students and students from other countries. Students can enter the programs either in the fall or spring semester. Online application for the fall semester of 2020 starts from February 5 to April 30, 2020.
